Introduction

Like many communities, northeastern South Carolina has a lot of work to do to prevent and end youth homelessness. For those s who believe it's not possible, we can agree it is an infinite problem, and that you should replace the word "end" with "tackle."

How do we tackle an infinite problem? Well, in the words of Arthur Ashe, "Start where you are. Use what you have. Do what you can."

Young people with lived experience lead the charge on tackling this issue. They are using what they have, and they are doing what they can. In the words of a youth leader, "I want to use my own journey to help others and create positive change in our community." Another young professional said, "I hope to overcome my current situation of homelessness so that I can become an advocate for others who have experienced homelessness, especially other young people. I believe that sharing my wisdom and experiences can make a difference in their lives, as I have walked the same path and understand the challenges they face."

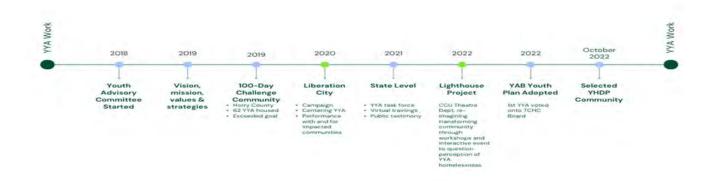

So, as this work begins, we join together to honor, acknowledge, and celebrate the voices of youth leading the way to address the social and individual issues of housing instability, to achieve the youth action board's dream to prevent and end youth homelessness.

Community History with Youth Homelessness

In 2018, TCHC dedicated its attention to focusing on young persons at-risk of and experiencing homelessness, starting with lived experiences. The CoC established a seven (7) member Youth Advisory Board as the lead for planning and implementation of the coordinated community approach to prevent and end youth homelessness. As recipient of the HUD 100-day challenge, the committee worked diligently through 2022 to provide input to the CES and bylaws committee to address policies around rapid rehousing strategies and standards. This work has brought other systems of care into the discussion around youth homelessness, and increased awareness of youth experiencing homelessness.

In 2022, the YAB established a Youth Homeless Initiative (YHI). This movement was centered on the voices of youth and young adults with lived experiences of homelessness in the northeastern region of South Carolina with the goal of ending homelessness. The initial success of the initiative was garnered from system-wide collaboration around outreach, education and awareness of youth homelessness.

Community Progress

Vision, Mission, and Values

The Youth Action Board (YAB) sets the vision, mission, and values for the youth homeless work, which is supported by TCHC.

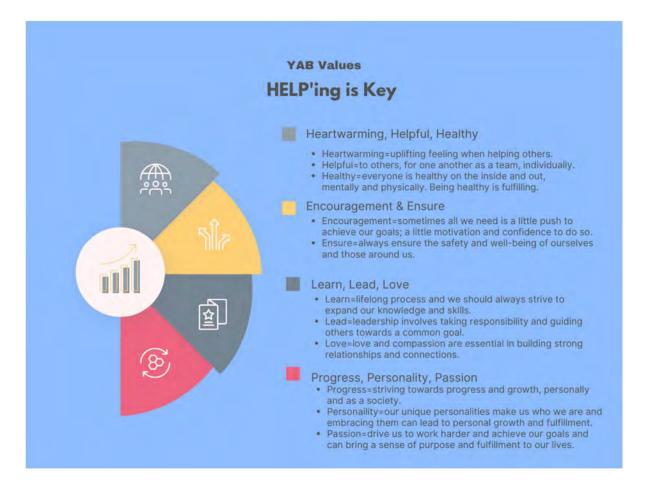

The Movement: HOPE BUILDERS: Empowering NESC Youth

The Vision: To prevent and end youth homelessness.

The Mission: To provide meaningful & tangible support to those in need by providing financial assistance and resources to help them achieve their goals. We strive to create positive, lasting change in our community by providing resources to individuals who are unable to access them on their own. We believe that by providing support, we can reduce poverty, improve health and promote economic stability.

Statement of Need

Close your eyes and imagine a young person at risk of or experiencing homelessness. Depending on your own experiences the images may be different. Having a shared understanding is key, and we will start with a common language. A young adult is between the ages of 18 to 24. A youth, or minor, is under the age of 18. An unaccompanied young person is not accompanied by a parent or guardian. Throughout this plan the term Youth and Young Adult (YYA) will be used to indicate both, along with young people and persons.

Currently, the methods used to quantify the number of YYA at-risk of or experiencing homelessness depends on older adults, agencies, and systems locating them, through outreach, asking questions during intake, and marketing services. Based on research and youth perspective there are factors that can increase the likelihood of a young person experiencing homelessness. Risk factors may include being involved in foster care, the juvenile or adult justice system, pregnant or parenting, identifying as LGBTQ+, race, ethnicity, ability status, and low educational attainment. Additionally, there are barriers that may get in the way of YYA getting help, such as awareness of existing resources, navigating these resources (systems), ability to access services, not youth-centered, distrust from previous system involvement, traumatic familial or system experiences, and not affirming of their identity.

Young Adults Experiencing and At-Risk of Homelessness (18-24)

Homeless Management Information System (HMIS) Data

Total Care for the Homeless Coalition (TCHC) uses a Homeless Management Information System (HMIS) software that complies with HUD's data collection, management, and reporting standards. The HMIS is a local information technology system used to collect client-level data pertaining to housing and services to persons at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. To help in providing what the known need of young adults seeking homeless services looks like, data is provided from the Coordinated Entry System (CES) and YYA served in housing and homeless programs. Several years are included to help us see the number, or need, along with any possible trends. The years include 2020, 2021, 2022, and January through April 2023, totaling 40 months.

The Coordinated Entry System (CES) is the front door that YYA can enter the homeless services system. CES can be accessed on-line, by phone, or in person. Young people may be provided information on mainstream resources to locate while they are waiting for the possibility of being referred to a housing provider. Due to more individuals coming through CES than there are dollars to house all of them, the need in the TCHC service area for homeless services exceeds the current resources; meaning services are not always immediate. Also, YYA are essentially competing with five other priority populations (families with children birth to five, seniors aged 65 and older, substance use disorder, domestic violence, and chronically homeless) who have been deemed more vulnerable; therefore, a higher priority.

There has been an upward trend in the number of YYA coming through CES from 2020 through April 2023. Plus, there has been an increase year over year in the total percentage of CES comprised of YYA. The total numbers by year are listed in Figure 1.

On average over the 40-month period, there were about 37 YYA coming through CES monthly (1,479 total over 40 months). Young people captured as served in a program, recorded in HMIS, included the following services: Emergency Shelter (ES), Homeless Prevention (HP), Other Permanent Housing, Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH), Rapid Re-Housing (RRH), Street Outreach (SO), Supportive Services Only (SSO), and Transitional Housing (TH). Of note, the numbers from HMIS and CES may not capture the young persons being served by other systems or youth providers not using HMIS.

Point-In-Time (PIT) Count Data

HUD requires Continuums of Care (CoCs) to conduct an annual Point-In-Time (PIT) Count, which provides a snapshot on a given night the number of persons in a community experiencing homelessness. The count includes sheltered (emergency shelter and transitional housing) and unsheltered locations. In 2020, there were 41 total unaccompanied young adults. For 2021, there were 8 unaccompanied young adults recorded. The 2022 count included 60 young adults.

Additional System Data

Other systems that are helpful to examine existing data to help us have a better idea of the number of young adults at-risk of and experiencing homelessness include the education and child welfare systems. The education system includes general information on the impact of lower educational rates, along with limited information from the higher education system. Within the child welfare system, Chaffee/ETV data provides a better understanding of the numbers of young adults at-risk of homelessness. In South Carolina (SC), The SC Department of Social services is the public child welfare agency, responsible for this program.

There is a direct correlation between a young person's success in school and their housing stability. In South Carolina, students experiencing homelessness graduation rates are 67% compared to all students at 81%. Also, math and reading performance is about 20% lower for students experiencing homelessness.

South Carolina Department of Social Services (SCDSS) is the public child welfare agency. They provide Chaffee Educational Training & Voucher (ETV) program to young adults.. According to a SC Department of Social Service worker, youth in foster care have lower educational attainment rates. As of the end of February 2023, there were 77 young persons receiving aftercare and case management services. There were 13 young persons receiving ETV funds.

Higher education systems in South Carolina do not appear to collect data on the housing stability status of students. The SC Technical College Association reviewed Perkins data over the last few years. On average there have been 14 career and technical college education students enrolled in their colleges statewide who are considered homeless.

Youth Experiencing and At-Risk of Homelessness (Under 18)

The Point-in-Time (PIT) count is a count of sheltered and unsheltered people experiencing homelessness on a single night in January. HUD requires that Continuums of Care conduct an annual count of people experiencing homelessness who are sheltered in emergency shelter, transitional housing, and Safe Havens on a single night.

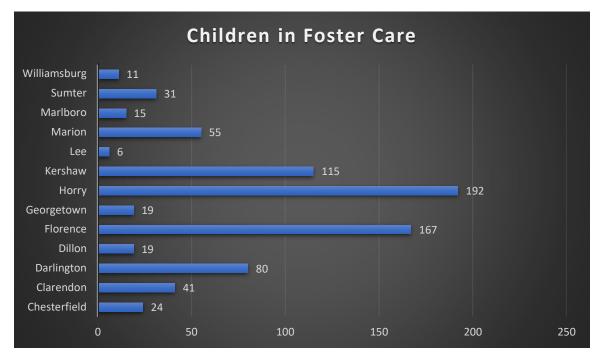

In addition to the PIT Count, the SCDSS foster care system, early childhood, and McKinney-Vento programs for kindergarten through 12th grade, provide data that sheds light on the state of youth homelessness within the region.

Point-In-Time (PIT) Count Data

Based on the PIT Count there were youth experiencing homelessness. In 2020, there were 4 total unaccompanied youth. For 2021, there were 6 unaccompanied youth recorded. The 2022 count included 14 youth.

Additional System Data

Foster care data helps us to look at the numbers of youth in care, examining minors who may be at-risk of experiencing homelessness upon exiting at the age of 18. SCDSS provides a public facing dashboard available with real time data. As of April 27, 2023, there were a total of 775 youth in foster care in the TCHC service area.

In the TCHC service area as of the end of February 2023 there were 67 youth aged 17 in foster care working on transitional plans.

Public School System Data

To better understand the estimates of minors (under the age of 18) who are at-risk of and/or experiencing homelessness within educational settings, we turn to data from the early childhood and public-school settings.

Early Childhood

According to data provided in the Children's Committee 2022 Data Book, there were 37, 163 children directly served by First Steps 4k and Local Partnerships. The estimated number of children indirectly served by First Steps Local Partnerships was 60,000+.

According to the South Carolina First Steps 2022 Annual Report, 57,435 children were directly served from birth through age five. Ten of the 13 counties in the TCHC area demonstrate 16-30% kindergarten readiness, with two 31-45%, and one 61-75%. Statewide 64% of children entering kindergarten tested

"not ready" for school. [SC First Steps and SCDoE have 4k programs and page 7 has a table that helps State-Funded Full-Day 4K Report, FY2021-22&2022-23.docx.pdf (sc.gov)]

Kindergarten through 12th Grade

For 2020/2021 school year there were 766, 819 total students, with 11, 986 students experiencing homelessness in South Carolina. That is a 1.6% identified rate compared to 2.5% nationally. Students experiencing homelessness in SC have a lower graduation rate (67%) comparted to all students (81%), and economically disadvantaged students (84%). Additionally, students experiencing homelessness are almost 20% points lower on math and reading compared to all students.

Within the 13-county Pee Dee Region there are 25 school districts, or LEAs. This includes the Governor's School for Science and Mathematics. The data provided is from the most recent publicly available information for the school year 2020/2021. THCH had 11% of the identified students experiencing homelessness in the state.

Pregnant and Parenting Youth and Young Adults

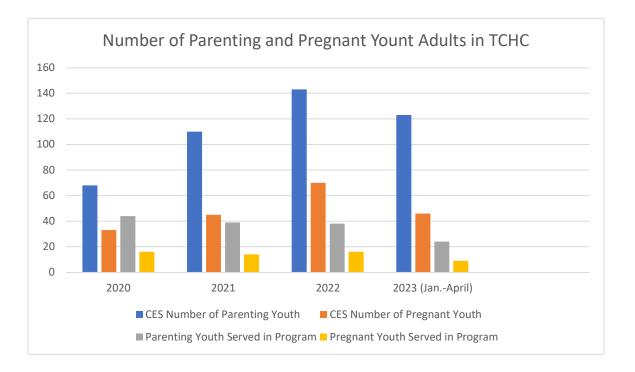

Youth and young adults who are pregnant and parenting face unique needs in addition to the challenges of housing stability. Pregnant YYA need prenatal care, nutrition, and education and employment may be impacted. Parenting YYA need specific supports such as healthcare, for parent and child, access to childcare, and supports for parenting. Other challenges may be the involvement of child welfare, which may come with the need to complete case plans, secure safe and stable housing, being separated from their child and working towards reunification, to name a few.

Chapin Hall Voices of Youth Count helps us have an understanding at a national level the prevalence of YYA parents.

At state level teen birth rates have decreased by 73% since a peak in 1991. According to Fact Forward, Commitment to Keeping Youth Healthy. 2020 South Carolina Teen Birth Trends, TCHC area has 4 counties ranked in the top 11 worst teen birth rate rankings, with 5 counties in the top 12-23, and 4 in the 24-34 rankings (out of 46 counties). Rankings are based on teen birth rates for 15–19-year-olds. Many youth experiencing homelessness were pregnant, had a pregnant partner, or were parenting.

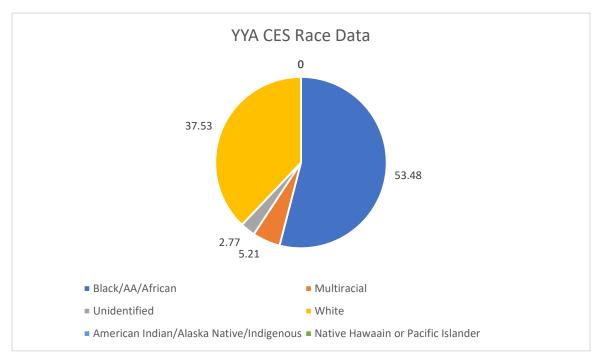

At the regional level, we turn to data from the Coordinated Entry System, HMIS, and the annual PIT Count for what know about YYA who are pregnant and parenting. Over a 40-month period (2020 through April 2023), the number of young adult parenting persons on average was 29.75% and pregnant youth 7.45% of all young persons coming through the CES. For those young adults served in housing programs, on average 19.4% were parenting youth and 7.3% pregnant youth.

As a part of the Point-In-Time (PIT) Count "snapshot", in 2020, there were 4 parenting young adults. In 2021 and 2022, there 2 and 11 parenting young adults, respectively.

Additional Characteristics of Youth and Young Adults Experiencing Homelessness

Looking at demographic data helps us take a closer look at the additional characteristics of YYA at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. Below you will find demographic data from 40 months of data from the CES (1479) and programs (745) taken from HMIS.

Contributing Factors

A needs assessment survey was used to obtain life experiences and information from YYA at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. Of the 30 YYA respondents, we have a snapshot of contributing factors to their current experience of homelessness.

Contextual Factors and Community Need

A good way to think about contextual factors is in relation to Maslow's Hierarchy of needs, that starts with our basic needs. Housing is a basic physiological need, education, employment, and health are safety needs, and friendship, family, and a sense of connection are related to love and belonging. The USICH four core outcomes and Maslow's hierarchy align as a framework that can be used to examine several of the major areas impacting YYA outcomes. It can also serve as a pathway to better outcomes for YYA. The four core outcomes include stable housing, permanent connections, education/employment, and well-being.

The community need is presented using the above frameworks and helps further inform the understanding of YYA at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. The community need was informed by homeless systems data, McKinney-Vento data, community need assessment surveys completed by older adults (25 years of age and older) and young persons (24 years of age and younger), interviews, and a system mapping with agencies and the YAB. This is based on the numeric estimates, observations, and experiences of young persons at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. The community needs assessment completed by older adults (25 years of age and older) and young persons (24 years of age and younger) provided an understanding of the needs in the TCHC region.

Housing: Safety Needs

In South Carolina, on average, in order to afford a modest one-bedroom housing unit at the fair market rent (FMR) of $862, one would need to make a housing wage of $16.58. The minimum wage is $7.25 and affordable rent would be $377. Imagine a young adult making minimum wage. They would have to work 91 hours a week to afford a modest one-bedroom home at fair market rent, leaving on average 11 hours a day. Of those 11 hours, a young person would have to choose if they would sleep, attend school, eat, exercise, connect with loved ones, maybe care for a child, a parent, run errands, etc. Out of Reach: | National Low Income Housing Coalition (nlihc.org) In addition to affordable housing, there is the challenge of accessible housing and ample inventor of rentals.

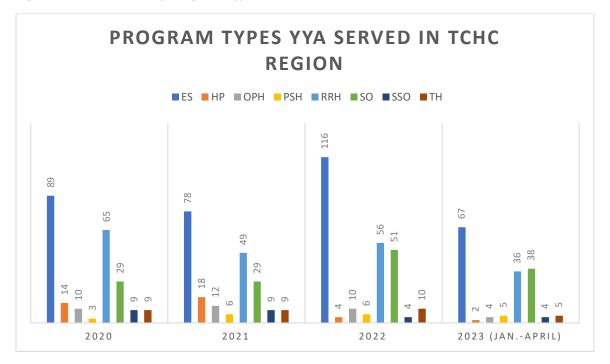

Based on emerging trends from TCHC Coordinated Entry System (CES) data and homeless services, there has been a slow decrease in the percentage of youth and young adults experiencing homelessness being served in a housing and homeless program over the last few years. Youth and young adults are one of five priority populations within TCHC, essentially competing with five other vulnerable groups including older adults (65 years of age and older), families with children birth to five, substance use disorder, domestic violence, and chronically homeless. In 2020 73% of YYA who came through CES were served in a homeless service, down to 54% in 2021, 47% in 2022, and 36% as of April 2023. Additionally, there has been an upward trend in the number of YYA coming through CES, from 265 in 2020 to 392 as of April 2023.

There are a few agencies that provide services specifically for youth at-risk of and experiencing homelessness in the TCHC area. Please see table below. In addition to the youth serving agencies, Eastern Carolina Housing Organization (ECHO) provides housing and homeless services to the majority of YYA in the TCHC area.

Young adults are also served by housing and homeless services available to all persons at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. The services documented in HMIS that YYA were served in were the following: Emergency Shelter (ES), Homeless Prevention (HP), Other Permanent Housing (Any Length Recovery program accounts for YYA served), Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH), Rapid Re-Housing (RRH), Streat Outreach (SO), Supportive Services Only (SSO), and Transitional Housing (TH). See below for the total YYA served in each of these services over a 40-month span.

According to USICH, stable housing includes a safe and reliable place to call home (cite and hyperlink).

Based on the community needs assessment completed by older adults, the top identified contributing factor to youth being at-risk of and experiencing homelessness included a lack of affordable and accessible housing. In addition to lack of affordability, there is a limited supply of housing stock for low income households.

A young person said, "I have to laugh that the housing is so expensive. I can't afford to live in a 1 bedroom. How am I supposed to save for a security deposit, and the other fees they want. I don't even know how to build credit. My boyfriend barely makes enough to get us by." Another young person described the need for stable housing with sharing, "I struggle with sleeping at night because I constantly worry about losing my current housing. Despite having a home now, I've learned from experience that homelessness can happen unexpectedly, so it's difficult not to be anxious about it happening again. This fear is compounded by my PTSD and the trauma of previously experiencing homelessness."

An older adult reported "There is a gap when it comes to age restrictions for affordable housing. Most places that rent want the renters to be 25 or older." Further they reported one of the rural areas has few places available for rent. "Here, there is nowhere for them to go." This was supported by another similar comment stating "Young people cannot find stable places to live because they lack the credit development, income is insufficient, and if you are under 21, it is hard to find people to rent to you. Most of them living in abandoned houses or cars." Another older adult said, "There is simply not nearly enough affordable housing units and very, very few programs that wrap shelter, support, and services around youth and young adults at-risk of experiencing homelessness."

Education/Employment: Safety Needs

According to USICH, education/employment includes high performance in and completion of educational and training activities, especially for younger youth, and starting and maintaining adequate and stable employment, particularly for older youth (cite and hyperlink).

Data show strong relationships between education and homelessness The relationship between educational attainment Racial and ethnic inequities cut and homelessness is bidirectional. across both homelessness and educational outcomes. This is due to analytical limitations with the couch surfing variable, but we present broader couch surfing statistics elsewhere (see the VoYC national estimates brief.)

(Source: Chapin Hall at the University of Chicago)

A young person said in the needs assessment, "I was homeless before I even graduated high school. It's hard to focus on schoolwork when you're worried about where you'll sleep at night."

In relation to higher education, a community member said, "students in our college that have no affiliation with a state agency for support are at a disadvantage for receiving help; they end up returning to their dysfunctional environments and leaving college altogether to support the habits of those that hold ownership of the home."

Several young persons addressed the barrier of transportation for employment and school. "I don't have a car, it's been in the shop. It works one day and then the next it doesn't, so it's almost impossible to get to school or to go around applying to places to work." Another young person said, "The economy we are in right now isn't good either. The pay where I am employed isn't good. I can't get by in today's economy making $300 a week at the Dollar Tree. I am a 1st generation student who is making minimum wage and there is nothing for me right now to get a better job. I am stuck in this repetitive cycle of having the minimum to pay for what I need, but never getting ahead. Right now I don't have to pay for housing, a car or insurance, but if I did I wouldn't be able to survive on $300 a week."

The second and fourth highest barrier young persons identified on the community needs assessment was income and employment. It was also one of the top solutions to prevent homelessness.

Permanent Connections: Love and Belonging

According to USICH, permanent connections include ongoing attachments to families, communities, schools, and other positive social networks.

Based on the community needs assessment completed by older adults, four of the top 5 identified contributing factors to youth at-risk of and experiencing homelessness included family substance use (2), family mental health issues (3), domestic or interpersonal violence (4), and child welfare system involvement (5). One young person's solution was "more mental health evaluation of parents or counseling of parents." The second highest barrier identified by young people centered around conflict with family/friends.

Young persons identified a barrier to stable housing being conflict with family, and reported the support needed to prevent homelessness includes the support of family and friends. Of the 30 young persons who completed the needs assessment survey 27% reported their current experience of homelessness was due to being kicked out.

Social and Emotional Well-Being: Love and Belonging

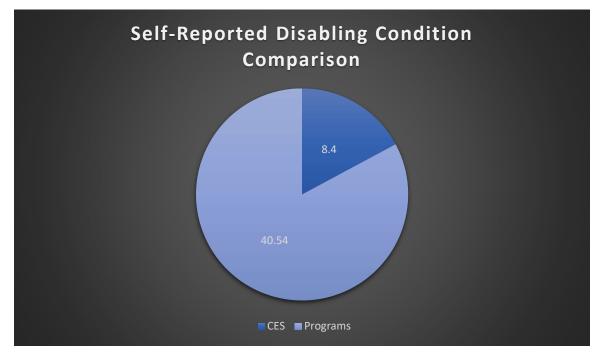

According to USICH, social-emotional well-being includes the development of key competencies, attitudes, and behaviors that equip a young person to succeed across multiple domains of daily life, including school, work, relationships, and community (cite and hyperlink).

The number one, resounding need expressed by youth with lived experience of homelessness was mental health. One youth reported that "counseling" could have prevented their experience of homelessness. Another youth reported that "I would like to see more opportunities for mentally ill youth." And another young person shared their own experience, "I wish there were more mental health services available for a cheaper price. I'm not sure how to get help because I don't have insurance. It's hard to deal with being in situations like this when you're also dealing with depression and anxiety." And another, "I experience chronic stress due to my current situation, which exacerbates my anxiety and depression, and triggers my PTSD symptoms. It feels like a silent killer to me." And another, "My mental health is severely impacted because I am never able to get ahead in life right now. It feels like I am stuck in these vicious repetitive cycles and it feels like I am being defeated. The stress and reoccurring trauma that keeps surfacing is enough to keep me from sleeping."

Older adults supported the need for youth mental health support, which was ranked #6 in the top contributing factors to youth homelessness. Several older adults said, "Accessible and affordable mental health care.... Accessible and affordable substance abuse detox/rehabilitation programs...." Also, several folks stated more mental health resources and support are needed for young persons.

Disability Status

Young persons who self-identify with diagnosis and/or co-occurring diagnoses. Below is self-reported disability information in CES and HMIS. An interesting comparison is the percentage of YYA served in CES compared to a homeless program (40-month time span from 2020 through April 2023). The primary self-reported disability type for both CES and programs was mental health disorder. Based on the information obtained from YYA who completed the youth needs assessment, this supports the data.

Barriers

The justice system and child welfare system serve as additional barriers, or risk-factors for youth and young adults for housing stability.

Justice Systems Involved Youth

The most recent publicly available data from the South Carolina Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) was from 2021. This was located in the Committee on Children 2022 Data

Reference Book. Statewide 11, 343 juvenile delinquency cases were referred to DJJ, a 14% increase from the previous year. There were 1,926 youth detained in 2021. Of those youth, 57.4% were 16+ years, 36.2% 14-15 years, and 6.4% 0-13. Most of the youth detailed were male (79.4%) compared to females (20.6%). Black or African American comprised the majority (70.5%), followed by White (22.3%), Hispanic (5.6%), and American Indian/Alaskan Native, Asian or Pacific Islander, and other (1.6%). The top 4 juvenile detention offenses were pickup order (359); weapons: sale or delivery of pistol to, and possession by, certain persons unlawful, stolen pistol (166); assault: assault and battery-third degree (135), status: runaway (98).

In the TCHC service area, there were 350 youth referred for violent/serious offenses in 2021, 27% of total in the state. Of the 414-youth committed, 26% were in our service area.

The following was taken from the most recent publicly available data from the South Carolina Department of Corrections (SCDC). Over a 12-year period (June 30, 2010 to June 30, 2022) there has been a drop over 76.9% in the daily population of Youthful Offenders incarcerated at SCDC. Also, SCDC reports an historical low for Youthful Offender recidivism rates at just 35%, which was over 50%. Of note, the Division of Young Offender Parole and Reentry Services (YOPRS) was created in fiscal year 2012 due to high rates of recidivism for young persons sentenced under the Youthful Offender Act (SC Code 24-19-10). To help with better understanding young persons in the adult system, we can look at the numbers of inmates admitted to SCDC during fiscal years 2018-2022. There was a decrease in the percentage of inmates 24 and under during this time period. Starting in FY 2018 with 21% of the inmate population being 24 and under, that percentage gradually decreased to 15.3% in FY 2022. The biggest decrease experienced between FY 2021 to FY2022 by 3% points. For FY 2022, there is a gender and race breakdown with 24 and under. 21.7% of this age range were black males, 16.5% black females, 9.9% white males, 8.0% white females, 27.5% other males, and 22.2% other females.

At the end of February 2023, there were 77 young persons served through the Chaffee/ETV program receiving aftercare and case management services. 13 young persons were receiving ETV funds. Young people in foster care age 17, planning for transitioning, totaled 67. Demographic data was not available from the report providing this data.

Guiding Principles

Guiding principles, in general, mean a structured way of understanding an issue. It helps guide with problem solving and developing solutions. HUD and the United States Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH) have identified what they call the Guiding Principles. The Guiding Principles provide a common language and understanding of YYA homelessness. The Guiding Principles framework ensures the community's coordinated response to youth homelessness is equitable, outcomes-driven, and reflective of authentic youth voice, choice, and collaboration.

Work in the space of youth and young adult homelessness is still considered fairly new. There is little research to inform YYA homeless practices, compared to other well-developed issues, few evidenced-based programs and practices, and contending with siloed work in this space. Over the last few years, funding opportunities for innovative programming and practices has increased, along with the centering the voices of youth with lived experienced in leading the way.

What is the youth framework and how can it help? Over 10 years ago, USICH released details on a framework to end youth homelessness. The Framework to End Youth Homelessness is intended to "reflect a framework for strategies to build on that work at federal, state, and local levels. The aim of this framework is a clearer understanding of the scale and nature of action required to prevent and end youth homelessness." There are two complementary strategies, which are data strategy and capacity strategy.

The data strategy is about better understanding the actual scope, prevalence, and nature of youth homelessness. For TCHC that includes working on identifying, collecting, and analyzing quantitative and qualitative data on youth experiencing homelessness in our region. Examples include conducting a youth count, along with strengthening and coordinating with state systems serving YYA to share data. TCHC can continue to update the Coordinated Community Plan, improving our local knowledge.

Guiding Principle 1: USICH Youth Framework and the Four Outcomes

The capacity strategy focuses on strengthening and coordinating the capacity at the local, state, and federal systems levels. It is informed by better data to inform investments and the types of services created and delivered. Essentially, the Youth Homelessness Demonstration Program (YHDP) provides the opportunity to build capacity for the TCHC region. Our community will be able to plan system strategies and develop a service array addressing the varying levels of risks and needs. TCHC can review screening and assessment tools, along with interventions, to improve youth outcomes. The funding from YHDP will increase services offered, or the capacity for YYA at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. TCHC will monitor progress of YHDP programs and adjust services as needed. Additionally, evaluation will cover the impact of programs and services on the four core outcome areas.

The four core outcomes align with Maslow's Hierarchy of needs. Simply put, a person must first have their basic needs met to be able to further develop and grow. The first, or foundational level, includes the basic need of housing and food. The second level, built upon the foundation, safety and security, includes education and employment. The third level encompasses social needs like family, friendship, a sense of connection; essentially love and belonging. This level includes the core outcomes of well-being and permanent connections.

Stable housing includes a safe and reliable place to call home. Stable housing fulfills a critical and basic need for youth experiencing homelessness. It is essential to enable functioning across a range of life activities. Lack of stable housing, on the other hand, exposes young people to a multitude of risks on the streets.

Education and employment include high performance in and completion of educational and training activities, especially for young youth, and starting and maintaining adequate and stable employment, particularly for older youth. Achievements in education and employment increase a youth's capacity to support themselves and avoid future homelessness.

Social Emotional Well Being refers to the social and emotional functioning of homeless youth. It includes the development of key competencies, attitudes, and behaviors that equip a young person experiencing homelessness to avoid unhealthy risks and to succeed across multiple domains of daily life, including school, work, relationships, and community. One of the YAB core values is Ensure because we should always ensure the safety and well-being of ourselves and those around us. Additionally, the YAB core values include Progress because we should always be striving towards progress and growth, both personally and as a society. Personality because our unique personalities are what make us who we are and embracing them can lead to personal growth and fulfillment. Passion because having passion for something can drive us to work harder and achieve our goals and can bring a sense of purpose and fulfillment to our lives.

Permanent connections include ongoing attachments to families, communities, schools, and other positive social networks. Connections support young person's ability to access new ideas and opportunities that support thriving and they provide a social safety net when young people are at-risk of re-entering homelessness. One of the YAB core values is Love because love and compassion are essential in building strong relationships and connections with others

Guiding Principle 2: Commitment to Housing First

Simply put, housing first is placing a youth in housing then working on whatever they identify as their needs. The National Alliance to End Homelessness (NAEH) describes housing first as an, "approach [that] is guided by the belief that people need basic necessities like food and a place to live before attending to anything less critical, such as getting a job, budgeting properly, or attending substance use issues. Additionally, Housing First is based on the theory that client choice is valuable in housing selection and supportive service participation, and that exercising that choice is likely to make a client more successful in remaining housed and improving their life." The TCHC community is committed to strategies and approaches to ensure all youth will be offered immediate access to safe, secure, and stable housing with no preconditions.

Guiding Principle 3: Equity and Inclusion

The TCHC community recognizes that inequities exist at multiple levels. We will continue working on identifying and understanding disparities that impact YYA at-risk of and experiencing homelessness. TCHC and member organizations have demonstrated the value of representativeness of folks with lived experience and special populations at all levels, including board members, agency leadership, staff, and volunteers. We are committed to the continuance of measuring, evaluating, and understanding inequities that exist for Black, Indigenous, People of Color (BIPOC), lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer (LGBTQ+), and persons with disabilities.

Guiding Principle 4: Meeting the Needs of Special Populations

The TCHC community recognizes several special populations are more vulnerable to homelessness to include LGBTQ+, minors, pregnant and parenting, justice and foster care systems involved, victims/survivors of sexual trafficking and exploitation, and immigrant youth. Recognizing and responding in specific ways is important to us, as young people in special populations may be overrepresented in the space of homelessness. Culturally responsive resources are important for identification methods, infrastructure considerations, along with housing and service delivery approaches. We value meeting the needs of special populations at the individual, family, community, and systems levels. The YAB specifically addressed the need for services geared towards the individual needs of special populations, specifically LGBTQ+ and pregnant and parenting minors.

Guiding Principle 5: Trauma-Informed Care & Positive Youth Development

Trauma Informed care (TIC) creates safe places for youth to heal. A TIC approach includes responses that incorporate knowledge about trauma into policies, procedures, and practices; said simply in settings and relationships. It is not about what is wrong with someone, but what happened to someone. For example, in practice knowing that if you a young persons walks into an agency, not expecting them to be able to in a one-hour case management meeting cognitively be able to develop a case plan (thinking ahead or forward thinking), when they are in survival mode living on the streets focused on safety, getting food and water, and not being harmed (thinking in the moment). TIC models typically include a focus on the following: Safety; Trustworthiness and Transparency; Peer Support; Collaboration and Mutuality; Empowerment; Voice and Choice; and Cultural, Historical, and Gender issues.

PYD is about helping young people thrive. A definition of PYD was developed by the Interagency Working Group on Youth Programs.

PYD is an intentional, prosocial approach that engages youth within their communities, schools, organizations, peer groups, and families in a manner that is productive and constructive; recognizes, utilizes, and enhances young people's strengths; and promotes positive outcomes for young people by providing opportunities, fostering positive relationships, and furnishing the support needed to build on their leadership strengths.

PYD programs typically focus on the following six youth outcomes: Confidence; Character; Connection; Competence; Caring; and Contribution.

TIC and PYD will be incorporated into all aspects of the youth crisis response system, including at the system and project levels.

Guiding Principle 6: Individualized and Youth-Driven Supports

A client-centered, or youth-driven supports, approach involves the YYA directing their process, and decision making in achieving housing stability. The professional does not impose their own beliefs, values, or experiences onto the client. TCHC supports the development of a system that responds to the different needs for service type, intensity, and length of support by providing individualized and client-driven support.

Guiding Principle 7: Youth Choice

To increase the effectiveness of working with individuals, having choice is key to being engaged in change. Youth voice and choice can inform the design, selection, and implementation of all parts of the youth crisis response system and programs.

Guiding Principle 8: Family Engagement

Families can be given, adopted, or created. What is interesting about families is they can contribute to a YYA becoming homeless and part of a solution. Using strategies and services to engage a YYA's chosen family is key to the array of available solutions. The strategies and services will include strengthening, stabilizing, and reunifying families as part of the youth crisis response system.

Guiding Principle 9: Social & Community Integration

Setting young people up for success includes creating connections and opportunities, along with providing support for being a part of their community. Preparing YYA for a successful transition to adulthood needs to incorporate positive connections to social supports and affirming spaces. TCHC is committed to increasing supportive services and community collaboration focused on creating opportunities for a healthy transition to independence.

Guiding Principle 10: Coordinated Entry

The Coordinated Entry System (CES) serves as the front door for young people accessing homeless and housing services. Youth and young adults have unique needs that require the entire CES be youth appropriate. An example would be incorporating the principles of TIC and PYD, self-direction, and using a youth-specific assessment tool.

List of Community Goals, Objectives, & Action Steps

The YAB established the steps and keys to achieving progress. These steps and keys guide the work for accomplishing the community's vision, mission, values, and goals.

To frame the community goals, objectives, and action steps, the homeless response system frame will be used. This frame helps us work from identification, to diversion, crisis beds, permanent housing, and stably housed.

New Project Types

As part of the YHDP planning process, the YAB discussed which types of projects would best help address the issues they see facing youth and young adults. The YAB established priorities and included a list of non-negotiables as a part of project design. These included applicants including funding for training in trauma informed care and Youth centered response. Projects are prioritized by YAB in order of importance. As a part of an RFP process, the YAB also noted that they would prioritize applications that included a peer support component.

Rapid Rehousing
Core Elements of the Project	This project prioritizes the transition out of homelessness and into permanent housing by providing up to 36 months (with HUD waiver) of housing support and services. Program design will vary, but RRH program can be scattered site or project-based and can include shared housing to help youth sustain housing after assistance ends in order to meet the need of the youth.

Desired Outcomes	<ul> <li>Decrease # of youth experiencing homelessness</li> <li>Increase exits to permanent housing</li> <li>Attain Education and Employment (increase in income)</li> <li>Increase # of youth in stable housing for 12 months or more</li> <li>Decrease # of youth returning to homelessness after 12 months</li> </ul>
YHDP Principles to be Addressed	□ Housing First: No preconditions to enrollment/ Housing First. □ Equity & Inclusion: Identifying, understanding, and addressing inequities and disparities through the DEI training, inclusion of representativeness at all levels, and reviewing program and outcome data for possible disparities. Agencies provide a safe, inclusive, and affirming space for all youth. All staff and volunteers are trained in areas related to equity, cultural responsiveness, and inclusivity.
	☐ Meeting Needs of Special Populations: This will meet the need of referring and connecting pregnant and parenting youth to services to meet their unique needs (e.g., Head Start/Early Head Start, SC Homeless Initiative (HI) Scholarship Program for childcare, fatherhood programs, prenatal care, etc.). Utilize specialized outreach strategies for LGBTQ+ youth, youth with disabilities, and other special populations.

YHDP PLANNING & COLLABORATION

In November 2021, TCHC received notice that it was the recipient of the YHDP. Although contracts and funding were not executed in March 2023, in February 2023 TCHC sponsored a virtual kick off meeting with community stakeholders to introduce YHDP, including an implementation timeline and summary of key activities. An email announcement was also disseminated to the full Continuum and homeless service providers were given the opportunity to join the YHDP Planning process. The YHDP Planning process began in March, with the Lead Agency coordinating efforts among the YAB and Adult Practitioner group. Both groups met weekly throughout the planning process. All members of the CoC were invited to participate in a Systems Mapping workshop, which was completed March 22nd and March 23rd.

These workshops also included sessions on Adultism and Equity (led by True Colors United) Engaged CoC members and homeless service providers to examine issues of adultism and white supremacy and identify pathways for authentic youth engagement at all levels of our work.

Education Convening (in partnership with the National Center for Homeless Education): Engaged educational institutions to discuss opportunities for education and homeless service system to collaborate.

In addition to workshops and committee meetings, a survey tool was utilized to grab information from key community partners and youth who fall into a number of categories - at risk, experiencing or previously experienced homelessness. In addition to the survey tool, small group and 1:1 discussions were conducted across the region at local access points and drop in centers.
